1855

Thesis.

H. L. Lutz

On imponderable substances.

For some years my mind has been exercised on the subject of the imponderable, or immaterial substances & Medicines, which has led me to Attennate some of the Medicines to several thousand Attennations.

I have used the same in diseases with the most astonishing effect, that I could not obtain from the lower potencies.

At this I am not so much surprised, when we take into consideration that it is the immaterial and not the material that has the faculty of eradicating disease or disturbance of the organism to health.

The quantity of Caloric in the whole world, if it were expressed and could be condensed on a scale of the most delicate balance, would not make it kick the beam so sensibly as the slightest breath of air, if at all, yet that latent heat is so magnificent in power that the merest local disturbancies of its equilibrium are productive of Earthquakes & Volcanoes. —

In a word all the diseases which are known to be produced by the entrance of something foreign into — the system through the natural channels are introduced by insensible quantities, so insensible that we cannot say of what, and so penetrating that there is no excluding them but by avoidance.

My plan of preparing these preperations are as follows.
One drop of the Mother Tincture, to one Hundred drops of Alcohol, one Hundred positive shakes to each and every Attenuation. The higher the attenuation the more close, finer, smoother, and penetrating, and consequently more suitable and better adapted to the system.

Henry S. Lentz
Chestnut Hill
Philadelphia County
Pa.